3. The pleadings are amended to conform to this pretrial order.

The parties are in agreement.

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. Dec. 2011)

4. The following claims (including claims stated in the complaint, counterclaims, crossclaims, third-party claims, etc.) have been filed:

Plaintiffs challenge Mississippi's redistricting plan for the State Supreme Court, which has been unchanged since its enactment in 1987.

The Complaint, as amended, alleges one cause of action, that the configuration of current state Supreme Court districts dilute the voting strength of Black Mississippians in violation of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act ("VRA"), 52 U.S.C. § 10301. ECF No. 133, Am Compl. ¶¶ 121–25.

Plaintiffs seek declaratory relief that the 1987 plan violates Section 2 of the VRA, and injunctive relief to enjoin Defendants from conducting future elections using the challenged districts from the 1987 plan and ordering the implementation of new district lines that comply with Section 2 of the VRA and other applicable laws. Plaintiffs also request attorneys' fees and costs.

No counterclaims, third-party claims, or crossclaims have been filed.

5. The basis for this court's jurisdiction is:

This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1343, and 1357 because the matters in controversy arise under the Constitution and laws of the United States, as well as under 52 U.S.C. §§ 10301 and 10310, and 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983 and 1988. Additionally, Plaintiffs' action for declaratory and injunctive relief is authorized by 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202, and Rules 57 and 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

6. The following jurisdictional question remains:

Defendants acknowledge that the Fifth Circuit has held that private parties may sue to enforce the Voting Rights Act and that they are unaware of any court that has held the private-right-of-action issue to be jurisdictional. However, purely for the purpose of preserving the issue for possible United States Supreme Court review, Defendants contend that the Voting Rights Act does not contain a private cause of action to enforce Section 2, 52 U.S.C. § 10301, that a Section 2 claim may not be asserted under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and that these right-of-action issues are jurisdictional in nature.

7. The following motions remain pending:

a) Plaintiffs:

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

1. Motion to exclude in part the proposed expert testimony of Dr. David Swanson. ECF No. 164.

2. Objections to order to pay certain fees to Defendants. ECF No. 178.

b) Defendants:

None.

8. The parties accept the following concise summaries of the ultimate facts as claimed by:

a. Plaintiffs:

Plaintiffs challenge Mississippi's districting plan for electing justices to the Mississippi Supreme Court. The enacted plan, which has been in effect since 1987 without any changes notwithstanding demographic shifts in the State, unlawfully dilutes the voting strength of Black Mississippians in certain areas of the State, including the Mississippi Delta region, in violation of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act (VRA), 52 U.S.C. § 10301.

Mississippi is divided into three Supreme Court districts, none of which is a Black-majority district by U.S. Census voting age population. The challenged lines do not afford Black Mississippians an equal opportunity to elect their candidate of choice to the Mississippi Supreme Court due to persistent patterns of racially polarized voting, which typically result in the defeat of Black-preferred candidates due to bloc-voting by White voters. Plaintiffs claim that the Supreme Court plan can and should include one reasonably-configured Black-majority district where Black voters will have the opportunity to elect candidates of choice to the State Supreme Court. See 52 U.S.C. § 10301(b); Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 50–51 (1986).

Consistent with the legal framework for vote dilution as set forth in Gingles and reaffirmed by the Supreme Court in Allen v. Milligan, 599 U.S. 1 (2023), the ultimate facts claimed by Plaintiffs with respect to the Section 2 claims include the following:

- Gingles 1: As demonstrated by illustrative plans drawn by expert map-drawer William Cooper among other evidence, it is possible to draw a Black-majority Supreme Court District 1 that is reasonably configured and consistent with traditional districting principles, such as compactness, not splitting political boundaries, and respecting communities of interest. Mr. Cooper will present multiple plans that include a reasonably-configured District 1 with a Black voting-age percentage over 50%, with no splits of any counties or precincts, and without fracturing the Mississippi Delta region, an important community of interest.

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

- Gingles 2: As demonstrated by the expert analysis of political scientist Dr. Byron D’Andra Orey, among other evidence, the voting patterns in Mississippi and Supreme Court District 1 show high levels of racially-polarized voting, such that Black voters vote cohesively for a preferred candidate and White voters vote cohesively against Black voters’ preferred candidate, especially in biracial elections (i.e., in elections where a Black candidate is opposed by a White candidate).
- Gingles 3: As demonstrated by the expert analysis of political scientist Dr. Orey, among other evidence, the high level of racially polarized voting in Supreme Court District 1 typically results in the defeat of Black-preferred Supreme Court candidates in contested elections. Most salient, Judge Latrice Westbrook, a Black appellate judge strongly preferred by Black voters, was defeated in 2020 due to 90+% White bloc voting against her.
- Totality of the Circumstances: Only in “the very unusual case” will Plaintiffs be able to demonstrate the three Gingles preconditions (and thereby show the dilution-by-submergence dynamic that is the hallmark of a Gingles claim) and yet fail to establish a Section 2 violation on the totality of the circumstances. Teague v. Attala Cnty., Miss., 92 F.3d 283, 293 (5th Cir. 1996) (quoting Clark v. Calhoun County, 21 F.3d 92, 97 (5th Cir. 1994)).

Considering the totality of the circumstances, the challenged district lines in the 1987 plan deny Black Mississippians an equal opportunity to elect candidates of choice to the Mississippi Supreme Court. See 52 U.S.C. § 10301(b). While Plaintiffs are not required to prove any of the “Senate Factors” in particular, these factors almost uniformly support a finding of liability.

- Senate Factor 1: As demonstrated by the analyses of historian Dr. James T. Campbell and political scientist Dr. Marvin King among other evidence, Mississippi has an extensive history of voting-related discrimination, from at least 1890 to the present.
- Senate Factor 2: As demonstrated by the analysis of Dr. Orey among other evidence, voting in Mississippi remains extremely polarized along racial lines. And this polarization reflects a racial divide, not merely a partisan one. For example, Dr. Orey’s analysis demonstrates evidence of polarization even in contests where partisan affiliation cannot explain differences in White and Black support (Supreme Court elections are themselves non-partisan). Moreover, Dr. Campbell’s and Dr. King’s analyses, among other evidence, demonstrate how the racial divide between voters predates the current alignment of the political parties, and how attitudes towards civil rights and racial equality significantly contribute to that alignment.

- Senate Factor 3: As demonstrated by the analyses of Dr. Campbell and Dr. King, among other evidence, electoral mechanisms that enhance the opportunity for discrimination have been and continue to be used in Mississippi, including in the areas relevant to this case. Among others, those mechanisms include at-large voting, felon disenfranchisement, and restrictions on early voting and absentee voting.
- Senate Factor 4: Supreme Court justices in Mississippi, including in District 1 in particular, are frequently appointed by the Governor, such that they first run for election with the advantage of incumbency. This feature of Supreme Court elections in Mississippi operates as a form of candidate slating and further disadvantages Black candidates.
- Senate Factor 5: As demonstrated by the analyses of Dr. Traci Burch and Dr. King, among other evidence, there are persistent disparities between Black and White Mississippians in education, health, employment, and other areas bearing on their ability to participate in politics. Black Mississippians are significantly worse off than White Mississippians across a wide variety of socioeconomic metrics. And consistent with the political science literature, Black voters in fact do participate at lower rates than White voters, according to multiple analyses, and the observed socioeconomic disparities explain that gap in turnout.
- Senate Factor 6: As demonstrated by the analysis of Dr. King among other evidence, political campaigns in Mississippi, both historically and in the present, continue to include implicit and explicit appeals to race. These appeals have characterized some of the most prominent campaigns in Mississippi in recent years. Candidates' use of racial appeals continues to reinforce the racial polarization of the political parties.
- Senate Factor 7: As demonstrated by the analysis of Dr. King, among other evidence, Black candidates in Mississippi face substantial barriers to political office outside of majority-Black districts. Despite being the State with the highest Black population in the country, Mississippi has not elected a Black candidate to statewide office since the 1870s, no more than one of the nine justices on the Mississippi Supreme Court has been Black at any given point in the State's history, and each of the four Black justices in the State's history was initially appointed by the governor to the same District 1, Place 2 seat.

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

- Senate Factor 8: As demonstrated by the analysis of Dr. Burch and Dr. King, among other evidence, there is a history of a lack of responsiveness on the part of Mississippi's elected officials to the needs of Black Mississippians, including particularly in the Delta region where the additional majority-Black district could be drawn. The lack of responsiveness can be seen in severe racial disparities in education, healthcare, and income, which are the product of state policies, such as the refusal to expand Medicaid and to take action to end de facto racial segregation of Mississippi schools or to adequately fund schools attended by minority students.
- Senate Factor 9: As demonstrated by the analysis of Dr. King, among other evidence, the enacted plan is supported by tenuous justifications. The claimed justification for the 1987 plan was population equality, yet no redrawing has occurred in the decades since despite major changes in Mississippi's population, as shown in the Census results from 1990, 2000, 2010, and 2020. Indeed, the population deviation range for the 1987 plan is now greater than 10%, which is presumptively inconsistent with the constitutional "one person, one vote" population equality requirement. Nevertheless, Mississippi has maintained the challenged district lines.

b. Defendants:

Plaintiffs claim to have been injured by the boundaries of Mississippi's Supreme Court Central District (District 1 or the "Central District"), and nothing else. Because they assert only that those boundaries violate § 2 of the Voting Rights Act, they must prove that those boundaries cause the political processes leading to election in the Central District not to be equally open to participation by black voters in that those voters have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect Justices of their choice.

The remedy Plaintiffs seek in Paragraph 5 of their Amended Complaint, ECF No. 133, is that the boundaries of the Central District "be redrawn, in a manner consistent with traditional districting principles, to have a Black voting age majority, such that Black voters have an opportunity to elect candidates of choice."

Plaintiffs acknowledge that the borders of the Central District were held not to violate § 2 in 1992 in a decision affirmed by the Fifth Circuit. Magnolia Bar Ass'n v. Lee, 793 F. Supp. 1386 (S.D. Miss. 1992), aff'd, 994 F.2d 1143 (5th Cir. 1993), cert. denied, 510 U.S. 994 (1993). Plaintiffs do not allege that decision to have been erroneous. Instead, they contend in Paragraph 48 of their Amended Complaint that, "at that time, it was not possible to draw any one of the three districts as a majority-Black voting age population district, as required under Gingles.” They further assert in Paragraph 49 that “the history of elections in District 1 in the decades since the Magnolia Bar Association decision demonstrates a clear pattern of white bloc voting against Black candidates.”

Whether or not it was possible to create a majority-black voting district in 1992, it is possible now, because one already exists. Only citizens are entitled to vote, and 51% of the voting age citizenry in the Central District is black. Accordingly, Plaintiffs already have the relief they seek in Paragraph 5 of their Amended Complaint.

As for election results since 1992, the boundaries do not enable white bloc voting usually to defeat black-preferred candidates as Thornburg v. Gingles requires. Since 1992, Justices Banks, Graves, and King have repeatedly won elections to the Mississippi Court. Justice James W. (Jim) Kitchens, a black-preferred candidate endorsed by Representative Bennie Thompson, ousted incumbent Chief Justice Smith, who is white, in 2008, and Justice Kitchens was elected again in 2016.

Within the same Central District boundaries, Commissioner Willie Lee Simmons, who is black, has twice been elected to the Mississippi Transportation Commission, and Commissioner De’Keither Stamps, who is also black, won election to the Public Service Commission on November 7, 2023, defeating white incumbent Brent Bailey. Commissioner Stamps took office on January 1, 2024.

From 1992 through today, black candidates for statewide office have repeatedly won majorities within the boundaries of the Central District. The clear fact is that black-preferred candidates to the Supreme Court and other offices usually win majority support in the Central District.

Plaintiffs’ Amended Complaint does not allege that black voters do not in fact participate equally in the political process, but Plaintiffs rely on one survey to suggest that the percentage of blacks voting in the 2020 general election was less than the percentage of whites. But three other surveys show that black participation exceeded white participation in that election. In 1999, District Judge Tom Lee found that black and white political participation had reached parity in Mississippi. NAACP v. Fordice, Case No. 3:92-cv-00250-TSL (July 7, 1999), aff’d, 252 F.3d 361 (5th Cir. 2001). One survey of one election does not prove Judge Lee wrong.

In Magnolia Bar, 793 F. Supp. at 1417, Judge Barbour found the east-west configurations of the three Supreme Court Districts to be supported by the need to diversify the population in each district. Unlike state legislators, the Justices are supposed to interpret the law instead of advancing the interests of particular segments of the population. For almost 200 years, Mississippi has drawn its Supreme Court Districts to balance the population along the Mississippi River against the population on the eastern side of the State. The east-west division makes it impossible for any particular group of voters to obtain excessive influence over any one Justice.

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

Although judicial elections have been held on a nonpartisan basis since 1991, voters are generally familiar with the partisan affiliation of Supreme Court candidates. Election returns demonstrate that voters cast their ballot with closer correlation to partisanship than to race.

9. a. The following facts are established by the pleadings, by stipulation, or by admission:

See Appendix A, “Joint Stipulated Facts for Trial.”

b. The contested issues of fact are as follows:

1. Whether Mississippi’s Supreme Court district lines violate Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 by diluting the voting strength of Black voters in Mississippi, including in the Mississippi Delta region, in that Black voters have less opportunity than White voters to participate in the political process and to elect Supreme Court Justices of their choice to the Mississippi Supreme Court.

Defendants suggest the following are additional contested issues of fact. Plaintiffs do not agree that these are contested issues of fact in this case.

2. Whether, under the circumstances existing through 1992 in Mississippi’s Supreme Court Central District, the political processes leading to election were equally open to participation by black citizens in that black citizens had an opportunity equal to other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect Supreme Court Justices of their choice.

3. Whether, under the circumstances existing through 1999 in Mississippi’s Supreme Court Central District, the political processes leading to nomination or election were equally open to participation by black citizens in that black citizens had an opportunity equal to other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect representatives of their choice.

c. The contested issues of law are as follows:

1. For purposes of preserving Defendants’ right of review before the Supreme Court, does the Voting Rights Act contain a private cause of action to enforce Section 2, 52 U.S.C. § 10301, or may a Section 2 claim be asserted under 42 U.S.C. § 1983?

2. Is the issue set forth immediately above waived because it was not raised by written motion pursuant to L.R. 7(b)(2)(A)?

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

3. For purposes of preserving Defendants' right of review before the Supreme Court, does a federal court of equity have authority to draw and to impose a plan for judicial election districts?
4. Is the issue set forth immediately above irrelevant to whether a federal court may make a liability determination in a Section 2 Voting Rights Act case, which is the issue for trial?
5. To what extent, if any, does Gingles apply to the boundaries of judicial election districts?
6. Is the issue set forth immediately above resolved by the holding of Chisom v. Roemer, 501 U.S. 380, 384 (1991) that the Gingles test applies to "state judicial elections"?
7. Whether Plaintiffs can establish the third prerequisite, "that the white majority votes sufficiently as a bloc to enable it ... usually to defeat the minority's preferred candidate," Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 56 (1986), in a district where no white majority exists.
8. Where blacks in an election district constitute a majority of eligible voters, taking into account both age and citizenship, can the boundaries of that district violate Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, absent special circumstances rendering that majority illusory? Salas v. Southwest Tex. Jr. Coll. Dist., 964 F.2d 1542, 1555-56 (5th Cir. 1992).
9. Whether the Salas case noted in the issue set forth immediately above is inapposite because it involved a challenged district where minority voters formed a majority of registered voters, not merely a majority of eligible voters, and also in any case because it did not hold that any "special circumstances" are required to prove vote dilution where the challenged district is already majority-minority and instead affirmed that the Gingles standard applies in such instances. 964 F.2d 1542, 1547 (5th Cir. 1992).
10. Does any illustrative plan offered by Plaintiffs group together geographically dispersed black voters into districts that, as Defendants contend, are so unusually shaped that they are unreasonable for purposes of the first Gingles precondition? (Mixed)
11. In adopting Section 2, did and could Congress constitutionally authorize a District Court to determine whether a judicial election district dilutes the voting strength of black Mississippians?
12. May the challenged districting statute be compared to some undiluted districting plan and if so, what is the undiluted plan to which the challenged plan may be compared?
13. Does history constitute scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge which may be the subject of expert testimony under Fed. R. Evid. 702?

FORM 3 (ND/SD Miss. DEC. 2011)

14. Is the issue set forth immediately above waived for failure to make a timely Daubert motion challenging the expert status of Plaintiffs' expert historian?

15. Does legislative map-drawing constitute scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge which may be the proper subject of expert testimony under Fed. R. Evid. 702?

16. Is the issue set forth immediately above waived for failure to make a timely Daubert motion challenging the expert status of Plaintiffs' expert map drawer?

17. May evidence of socioeconomic disparities between blacks and whites be admitted and considered in the absence of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the level of black participation in politics in a challenged district is depressed?

18. In Mississippi's Supreme Court Central District, do the challenged boundaries cause the political processes leading to election to the Supreme Court not to be equally open to participation by black citizens in that black citizens have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect Justices of their choice? (Mixed)

19. In Mississippi's Supreme Court Central District, is the lack of equal opportunity, if any, under § 2(b) for black voters "on account of race or color," as § 2(a) requires, or on account of the partisan preferences of the electorate? (Mixed)

10. The following is a list and brief description of all exhibits (except exhibits to be used for impeachment purposes only) to be offered in evidence by the parties. Each exhibit has been marked for identification and examined by counsel.

For exhibits that constitute large data files or data sets (for example, block equivalency files for districting plans) or native video or audio, the exhibits may be provided to the Court in a machine-readable format (such as a thumb drive) with a slip sheet page. 15. Counsel suggests the following additional matters to aid in the disposition of this civil action:

III. FACTS CONCERNING THE MISSISSIPPI SUPREME COURT

21. The Mississippi Constitution provides for the existence of three Supreme Court districts from which justices are to be elected, with three justices elected from each district.

22. The Supreme Court seats for each district are denominated as “Places” (e.g., “District 1, Place 1”).

23. Mississippi Supreme Court justices are elected. Elections for each position are held on an at-large, districtwide basis.

24. Mississippi Supreme Court justices are elected to eight-year terms. Those terms are staggered.

25. Since 1994, Mississippi Supreme Court justices have been elected in non-partisan elections without any party primary. Prior to the adoption of non-partisan judicial elections by the Mississippi Legislature, Supreme Court justices were elected in partisan elections with a party primary.

26. Vacancies on the Supreme Court, including those caused by resignation, are filled by the Governor.

27. The following current Supreme Court justices were initially appointed by the Governor to fill the unexpired term of a resigning member of the Court:

- a. Justice Kenny Griffis (appointed by Gov. Phil Bryant for a term starting in 2019)
- b. Justice David Ishee (appointed by Gov. Phil Bryant for a term starting in 2017)
- c. Justice Dawn Beam ((appointed by Gov. Phil Bryant for a term starting in 2016)
- d. Justice James Maxwell (appointed by Gov. Phil Bryant for a term starting in 2016)
- e. Justice Leslie King (appointed by Gov. Haley Barbour for a term starting in 2011)
- f. Chief Justice Michael Randolph (appointed by Gov. Haley Barbour for a term starting in 2004)

28. The district lines for the three Supreme Court districts are set by the Legislature. From at least 1890 until 1987, the geographic boundaries of the three Supreme Court districts did not change.

29. In 1985, Justice Reuben Anderson was appointed by Governor Bill Allain, a Democrat, to fill a vacancy in the District 1, Place 2 seat on the Mississippi Supreme Court. Justice Anderson thus became the first Black justice in the history of the court.

30. In January 1987, with the objective of correcting population malapportionment of the then-existing Supreme Court districts, the Legislature passed H.B. 552, a Supreme Court redistricting plan which shifted Attala and Winston counties out of District 1 and into District 3 and moved Claiborne, Copiah, and Jefferson counties into District 1 from District 2.

31. The U.S. Department of Justice precleared the plan in December 1987.

32. The district lines since 1987 have been as follows:

- a. District 1: Bolivar, Claiborne, Copiah, Hinds, Holmes, Humphreys, Issaquena, Jefferson, Kemper, Lauderdale, Leake, Madison, Neshoba, Newton, Noxubee, Rankin, Scott, Sharkey, Sunflower, Warren, Washington, and Yazoo Counties
- b. District 2: Adams, Amite, Clarke, Covington, Forrest, Franklin, George, Greene, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Jasper, Jefferson Davis, Jones, Lamar, Lawrence, Lincoln, Marion, Pearl River, Perry, Pike, Simpson, Smith, Stone, Walthall, Wayne, and Wilkinson Counties
- c. District 3: Alcorn, Attala, Benton, Calhoun, Carroll, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Clay, Coahoma, Desoto, Grenada, Itawamba, Lafayette, Lee, Leflore, Lowndes, Marshall, Monroe, Montgomery, Oktibbeha, Panola, Pontotoc, Prentiss, Quitman, Tallahatchie, Tate, Tippah, Tishomingo, Tunica, Union, Webster, Winston, and Yalobusha Counties

33. In 1986, Justice Anderson was elected in a special election, running unopposed in the general election after defeating Richard Barrett, an avowed segregationist, in the Democratic primary election.

34. In 1988, Justice Anderson was elected to a full term, running unopposed.

35. Upon Justice Anderson's resignation in 1991, Governor Ray Mabus, a Democrat, appointed Justice Fred Banks, who is Black, in the same District 1, Place 2 seat.

36. In a 1991 special election, Justice Banks, running as an incumbent, defeated his challenger, Chet Dillard. Justice Banks ran as a Democrat, and Dillard ran as a Republican. Banks won 118,122 votes, or approximately 51 percent of the total vote, compared to 111,949 votes for Dillard. Banks received approximately 30 percent of the white vote, combined with nearly unanimous black support. Based in part on these results, the Court in Magnolia Bar v. Lee, 793 Supp. 1386, 1407 (S.D. Miss. 1992), concluded in 1992 that "whites will not necessarily vote as a bloc for white candidates having black opponents in Mississippi Supreme Court elections so as to 'usually defeat the minority's preferred candidate.'"

37. Justice Banks later won reelection in 1996 in a non-partisan contest.

38. Upon Justice Banks' resignation in 2001, Governor Ronnie Musgrove, a Democrat, appointed Justice James Graves, who is Black, to the same District 1, Place 2 seat.

39. Running as an incumbent, Justice Graves won a contested election in 2004, prevailing in a runoff.

40. Upon Justice Graves' resignation in 2011, Governor Haley Barbour, a Republican, appointed Justice Leslie King, who is Black, to the same District 1, Place 2 seat. Justice King was subsequently elected to a full term in 2012 and re-elected in 2020, both times without opposition.

41. The Mississippi Supreme Court has had only four Black justices in its history: Justices Anderson, Banks, Graves, and King.

42. No Black candidate for the Mississippi Supreme Court has ever won election without first being appointed to the Court by the Governor.

43. The Supreme Court district lines have not changed since 1987.

44. According to the 2016-2020 5-year American Community Survey, the estimated Black CVAP of the Supreme Court districts is: District 1, 51.1%; District 2, 27.9%; District 3, 33.3%.

45. According to the 2020 U.S. Census count, the BVAP of the Supreme Court districts is: District 1, 49.29%; District 2, 27.66%; District 3, 32.65%.
